

ABSTRACT

A value for a first counter is maintained. A value for a second counter based on a content of a non-volatile memory is maintained. Updates to the value for the first counter and to the value for the second counter are controlled.